of twenty years, continuing to secure Patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries.

Inventions;—and legal or other advice required in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any Patent furnished by remitting One Dollar. Assignments recorded at Washington.

This Agency is not only the largest in New England, but through it inventors have advantages for securing patents, or ascertaining the patentability of inventions, unsurpassed by if not immeasurably superior to any which can be offered them elsewhere. The testimonials below give proof that none is MORE successful AT THE PATENT OFFICE

than the subscriber; and as SUCCESS IS THE BEST PROOF OF ADVANTAGES
AND ABILITY, he would add that he has abundant reason to believe, and can prove that at no other office of the kind are the charges for professional services so moderate.

The immense practice of the subscriber during twenty years past has enabled him to accumulate a vast collection of specifications and official decisions relative to patents. These,
besides his extensive library of legal and mechanical works, and full accounts of patents
granted in the United States and Europe,
render him able, beyond question, to offer
superior facilities for obtaining patents.

All necessity of a journey to Washington,
to procure a patent, and the usual great delay
there are hereby saved inventors.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful patent agents with whom I have had official intercourse."

"I have no hesitation in stating that inventors
that they cannot employ a person more competent and trustworthy, and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration
at the Patent Office."

EDMOND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents,
Boston, February 8, 1858.

"Mr. R. H. Eddy has made for me THIR-TEEN applications, on all but one of which patents have been granted; and that one is now pending. Such success is a noble proof of great ability and ability to the point leads me
to recommend all inventors to apply to him
to procure their patents, as they may be well
of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges."

From Sept. 17th, 1857, to June 17th, 1858,
the subscriber, in course of his large practice,
made, on tested rejected applications, SIX-TEEN APPEALS, EVERY ONE OF WHICH
was decided in his favor, by the Commissioner of Patents.

screamed at the sight of the dashing water. Emerging bathers ran shivering from door to door of the long row of slightly dressing-huts, in the vain endeavor to recall a forgotten number. Ducks and geese, which were forward and backward in search of food, and stray spaniels whiningly sniffed for lost masters; for the dog of Misses would have failed to recognize the Greek hero if he had come back in a wet bathing dress.

The Ives & Hazard Case.

We are informed that Mr. Van Zandt, on the special committee appointed on the Ives & Hazard case, made a report to the House of Representatives yesterday morning, accompanied a bill limiting the equity powers of the Supreme Court conformably with the statute provisions, and declaring that the decision in the case Ives vs. Hazard, should be received, and the complainant left to seek his remedy at common law.

The committee also report that the opinion of the Court in the said case, as published in the fourth volume of Rhode Island Reports, refers to charges of a gross immorality, are now here charged in the bill, or alluded to in the original opinion or decrees pronounced in the case.

The Burns Festival.

It may be doubted whether any other poet has ever received so general, hearty and spontaneous a tribute as that which was accorded to the memory of ROBERT BURNS, the Scottish bard, on the one hundredth anniversary of his birth, Jan. 25, 1859. The social celebrations of this event in New York and Boston, were on a large and elegant scale, attended by hosts of poetic and other celebrities, including many of the most able and popular writers in our country. Toasts, speeches, songs and odes specially written for the occasion, relics and reminiscences of the bard, and a sumptuous feast withal, were the order of the day; and this programme seems to have been adopted by pretty nearly all the cities in the land, as well as by many places which have not yet attained the civic dignity.

There is no reason to doubt that throughout the Kingdom of Great Britain, at least, the day was marked by peculiar honors; and we shall confidently expect to hear of its observance in many other countries—perhaps in every quarter of the globe—but almost certainly in every place where two or three "bonnie Scots" are located, whether it be in Egypt, India, or the isles of the Pacific.

The relative poetic talent and position of Burns, among the writers of his own and other times, are too well known to the reading public, to make it needful to dwell upon them here. That he was a highly cultivated and polished artist, like Pope, Moore, Campbell, or the great Milton, it would be folly to pretend. On the contrary, he has been rightly and aptly styled the "peasant bard."—He was born in humble life, cradled in anything but affluence, and never managed to get much ahead in the world, so far as material success is concerned. His school education was therefore limited to the ordinary and common opportunities.

But Burns was largely self-taught; he observed, reflected, remembered. He had, what all true poets ever have, an instinctive perception of the true and beautiful—an intuitive knowledge, almost, of men, manners and external nature—and a heart attuned to all gentle and genial harmonies. His themes were of the commonest, often homeliest kind—but with what magic interest has he not invested them! He wrote of little which he did not see, feel and know. Afar from the pomp and show of the great world, in his rustic home, and at his rural labors, he composed those simple yet touching strains which have reached the popular heart of many lands, and will probably last as long as anything remains of the tongue in which they were written.

We notice that the enterprising publishers of the New York Mercury, Messrs. Cauldwell, Southworth & Whitney, have engaged the services of the eminent artist, Felix O. C. Darley, who will hereafter devote himself to illustrating the Novellettes which will be published in that paper, which in its contents compares favorably with any and all its competitors.

LOCAL.

COURT OF JUSTICES.—Three hundred and sixty-seven men, and seventeen boys, wended their way to the Court House yesterday morning, and their hot, reeking breaths went up like incense—to the ceiling, and flaring no vent, came down and was breathed over and over again, till the air was filled with noxious vapors. There are no proper means of ventilation to the room, and it is said there cannot be, except by special act of the General Assembly. As "good men are scarce," and as the inhabitants of Newport in general, and those who frequent that court in particular, are celebrated for their many virtues, we do really hope that at an early day the Assembly will vote to make such alterations in our court room as will secure a proper ventilation, and thus preserve to the State many good men who will otherwise die of suffocation.

Nathaniel Nason, Jr., was called to the bar, and a warrant read, charging him with an assault, with intent to kill, upon Mary Nason, (his wife.) Nason plead "not guilty," and signified his readiness for trial. The Mayor remarked to the Court that the injured woman being yet confined to her bed, he should proceed to take the testimony of witnesses present, and then move the Court to proceed to the residence of Nason, on Mill Street, and receive that of the woman.

Dr. Henry E. Turner was the first witness called. His testimony related to the nature of the wound, the condition of the woman, &c. Richard Skelley was the next witness, and swore to the identity of the knife, with which Nason admitted to him the deed was done. Beyond this, nothing of importance was elicited from this witness. He is a brother of Mrs. Nason. Marshal Steele took the stand, and also swore to the identity of the knife (exhibited in Court).

The Court, the Mayor, officers Seaton and Hazard, and the prisoner, then proceeded to the residence of the latter, where they found the woman, and administered to her the oath preparatory to taking her testimony. Mrs. Nason is a native of Ireland and a Catholic, while her husband is an American and a Protestant. The story of the woman is that of a thousand others; an improvident, intemperate and abusive husband, two or three small children, slaving daily at the wash-tub to supply their wants and her own, and an occasional application of her own lips to the gin-bottle. Putting her story and his together, from a conversation between them in the bed-room in our presence, and that of the Court and officers, it would appear that on the morning of the assault there was a war of words between the parties, leading to the application of a broomstick by the woman to the head of her husband in sundry vigorous whacks, flanked by an emollient application to his head and neck of a pan of not over-clean dish-water. This was "hard coffee" for the husband, to be sure, and not supposed to be in a very remarkable degree promotive of conjugal felicity; but such things sometimes happen where parties are "unequally yoked." When, however, Nason seized that ugly knife and thrust it ruthlessly into the person of his wife, he committed an act which might have brought the crime of murder to his soul, and for which, if convicted of it, he will stand a very good chance of gaining a residence of two or three years in the State Prison. Nason has not been distinguished, in times past, for devotion to his wife, having three times within a year and a half been before the court for abusing her, and once served out a sentence of 30 days in the County jail for the same offence. On the two other occasions he was let off at the earnest solicitation of his wife.

From the house the officers, &c., returned to the court room, and the Mayor summed up briefly, referring to the fact that Nason was an old offender, and submitted the case. The defendant produced no evidence, and was held in the sum of $500 for his appearance at the Supreme Court.

FIREMEN'S LECTURES.—It will be noticed by reference to the advertisement, that Hon. C. C. Van Zandt will lecture before Hercules Engine Company, No. 7 in their hall, Howard Street, next Monday evening. The very sight of the man after his recent triumph will be worth the price of admission, to say nothing of the capital lecture which he will be sure to give.

Tuesday evening, 8th, the lecture will be by Rev. William Colvin Brown, pastor of Zion's Church of this city. It is needless for us to add that Mr. Brown has a peculiar faculty for entertaining and instructing his auditors. We understand it is the intention of the Company to furnish music in connection with these lectures.

DONE IT AGAIN!—The rail from here to Boston yesterday, again came back unopened in the afternoon; the consequence of which was that we had no mail from Boston. The fault of all these blunders lies with the Providence office, and not the Boston office, as we erroneously stated before. Inauguration ran high here last night, and talk was had of subscribing a cowhide, and deputing the most indignant among the whole to proceed to Providence and apply it to the shoulders of the delinquent man of the mails. Brother Atkinson was racing.

Mr. Myers, engineer of the Perry, informs us that at no time during the recent contest between that boat and the Bradford Durfee, did the head of steam on the Perry approach within ten pounds of the capacity of the boilers as fixed by law. He informs us further, that often the boats were not the thickness of a man's hand apart, yet they did not touch but once, and then so lightly as to be hardly perceptible, except by the eye. Tall steering, that.

A report was current about town last evening, that signal guns were heard in the early part of the evening, supposed from some vessel outside in distress or wanting a pilot. If the former was the case, and she was ashore, we tremble for her fate; for a most terrific sea was dashing on our rock-bound coast yesterday and last night. A vessel ashore on this coast last night, would not have held together fifteen minutes.

There was no boat from Fall River to New York Thursday night, and the Empire State did not leave New York. Consequently there was no mail from New York yesterday.

There will be service in Zion Church, to-morrow evening at seven, and on the first Sunday evening of every month, at the same hour, until further notice.

There will be service in the Mill Street church to-morrow evening at 7 o'clock.
